FIVE-CENT PHONES FOR GREATER CITY ARE NOW CERTAIN

Reduced Rate Will Yield Company Fair Profit at That Figure.

REVISION IN 7 MONTHS.

Takes Exception to Trust's Plan to Delay Relief Here.

The New York Telephone Company, which has been penalizing New York City with extortionate rates and making millions of dollars profit to spend in fighting competition in other cities, is endeavoring to delay the day of reduction as long as possible. It has officially admitted to the up-State Public Service Commission that rates must be revised, but seeks to postpone the time with a proposal to count every telephone pole and measure every foot of wire in the whole State as necessary to figuring out a new rate schedule for the metropolis. The Legislature, which appropriated $100,000 for expenses of the Public Service Commission in revising city rates, had different intentions. Its purpose was to give relief to New Yorkers first and at once. Senator James A. Foley, Chairman of the joint legislative committee on telephones, in an interview with The Evening World, sets forth clearly what must be done.

"The committee," he said, "is not in accord with the estimate of the New York Telephone Company that the appraisal and valuation will take from twelve to eighteen months and that rates cannot be reduced before that time.

"We think the work should be completed in seven months and the new rates fixed by the Public Service Commission by Feb. 1, 1915. Neither do we approve of the company's plan to value the entire property in the State. The appropriations of $100,000 made by the Legislature for the Public Service Commission were intended to be applied first to New York City valuation, and this purpose must be carried out.

"The New York City situation should be segregated from the rest of the State and telephone users in this city should not have to pay any longer for losses outside the city.

"Since The Evening World began its fight for reduction of rates it is noticeable that the attitude of the telephone company has changed from resistance to co-operation. It has opened books and supplied information. There remains now one thing more for the company to do to demonstrate its entire accord with the Public Service Commission and the Legislature. It must quicken its pace and speed up its lagging steps. "There has been shown in previous cases that in 1910 the New York Telephone Company was earning between 15 and 17 per cent. on its own estimate of property valuation in New York City. Since then the revenues have greatly increased.

"I believe, therefore, that there can be fairly fixed a maximum rate of five cents per telephone message throughout the entire city of Greater New York for all classes of subscribers, instead of the present higher rates and interborough toll charges. There can be fixed, also, proportionate reductions from this basic rate for some classes. Such rates
